The good news is that there are multiple opportunities available in a wide range of indoor and outdoor UK venues to meet all budgets and catering types with expert advice available to find the right venues.

We have a selection of internal and external opportunities for food retailers in shopping centres, retail parks, railway stations and garden centres. These venues are interested in new and innovative traders as well as established brands looking to expand their business.

PREMIUM SHOPPING CENTRES

Destination shopping centres attract a wide catchment of visitors – people don't just come to shop, but to eat, socialise and generally enjoy themselves. Dwell time is high and visitors are looking for new and quirky catering options. The venues themselves are always interested in food offerings that differ from their inline retailers and will encourage shoppers to stay at the venue for longer. Many premium shopping malls are now actively encouraging street food vendors on a rotational basis to their venue.

We are always interested in speaking to traders with high-end converted vintage vans, kiosks and shipping containers looking to trade in these prime locations.

REGIONAL SHOPPING CENTRES

The demographics of a regional shopping centre can vary dramatically, therefore the venue requirements can differ. Broadly speaking, venues are looking for offerings to complement the existing catering mix in both internal and external locations.

Street food and more niche offerings, such as dessert bars, are typically well received as are contemporary 'grab & go' food kiosks.

RETAIL/SHOPPING PARKS

The sizes and number of sites within each shopping park are vast. Outdoor kiosks generally offer grab and go food and drink and depending on the demographic and retailer mix, venues can be looking for anything from burger vans to street food and other gourmet caterers as well as sweet offerings.

GARDEN CENTRES

Visitors to garden centres tend to have high disposable income and venues are seeking a variety of food and drink offerings from ice cream on a hot summers day to hot roasted chestnuts during the winter period.

NICHE OPPORTUNITIES

Many venues host specific events including street food fairs and Christmas markets with locations such as Broadgate offering cutting-edge street food operators a unique platform to trade from.
